California Water Service Group Joins the National Association of Water Companies to Celebrate their 130-Year Anniversary

As Chairman of the National Association of Water Companies (NAWC), Martin A. Kropelnicki rang the New York Stock Exchange bell today to commemorate the 130th anniversary of the regulated water industry's commitment to delivering safe, reliable water and wastewater service to millions of families across the United States. The milestone highlights the strong financial health and essential role of regulated water companies in providing innovative solutions and infrastructure investments that work toward safe, reliable water and wastewater access for all.

NAWC represents California Water Service Group and other water utilities throughout the country to protect public health, promote environmental stewardship, and deliver sustainable solutions.
